Issues 1930-2014

Stamp booklets are small "booklets" consisting of one or more postage stamps, covered with a cardboard cover.

Booklets are often made from specially printed sheets with a narrow margin on one side for binding the stamps.

Typically, due to the cutting process, the stamps on the edges of the booklet do not have perforations.

Smaller and more convenient than a full sheet of stamps, booklets have become a popular way to purchase stamps in many countries.

Initially, telegraph stamp booklets were issued in the U.S. by the California State Telegraph Company in 1870 and by Western Union in 1871.

Luxembourg was the first country to issue regular postage stamp booklets in 1895, followed by Sweden in 1898, the United States in 1900, and Great Britain in 1904.

The idea quickly gained popularity and spread worldwide. In Greece, the first stamp booklets were issued in 1930.

At first, booklets were produced manually by separating sheets of stamps into smaller sections, which were then bound.

These stamps did not differ from regular ones.

Later, due to the popularity of booklets, special editions of booklet stamps were produced, which were cut into smaller sheets and perforated only between the stamps of each sheet.

For example, in the U.S., the first booklets were printed from special plates that created sheets of 180 or 360 stamps, which were cut into small sheets of six stamps.

These booklets contained stamps with one, two, or three straight edges without perforations.

In some countries, such as Sweden, the same stamp design is issued in rolls, booklets, and sheets.

Some collectors specialize in collecting these booklets, which are often sold at a higher price than the equivalent quantity of individual stamps.
